INDEPENDENT TAX CONSULTING

Editorial

Dear reader,

Welcome to the second edition of The CORIT Point of View. The publication is not a newsletter in its traditional sense but contains academic tax knowledge as well as other information about the many activities of CORIT.

The ambition of The CORIT Point of View is to keep you informed on recent and future activities within CORIT by providing overview and easy access to a selection of recent publications. You can find the articles simply by clicking the below titles. The content is made available on an ongoing basis via our webpages:

www.corit-academic.org, www.corit-advisory.com and via our LinkedIn groups CORIT Academic and CORIT Advisory.

Before we present the productions of CORIT network, we find it most relevant to take a glance at the current international tax landscape. The most notable event is the finalization of the OECD work on the BEPS project on 3 October 2015. What remains now is to see how States will actually use the recommendations in their domestic practices. We are certain that the BEPS project will ultimately lead to increased burdens in terms of compliance, increased risk of double taxation and increased legal uncertainty.

Consequently, we also experience an increased focus on Tax Risk Management and tax policy and tax strategy initiatives within MNE's.

Since the last edition of this publication the direct application of the EU State Aid Rules by the European Commission on advantageous tax regimes in certain European countries has become even more relevant. For Starbucks and Fiat the consequences are already significant. This tendency may lead to harmonization through the back door.

As also mentioned last year the EU Ban on Non-Audit Tax Services to certain companies of public interest (PIEs) is moving closer. This initiative is said to cause important changes to the tax service industry. We expect that this initiative will lead the way for more room in the market place for independent tax service providers.

All of the above tendencies confirms the true dedication at CORIT to international tax as primary area of interest and specialization.

Finally, we welcome any comments and business proposals.

Without further ado please enjoy the newsletter.

Jakob Bundgaard

CORIT introduces Value Chain Analysis

In a post-BEPS environment, the concept of value chain analysis has become pivotal. OECD has introduced the value chain analysis as a key basis for setting and documenting transfer prices in accordance with the arm's-length standard.

CORIT Advisory is working intensively with the application of different tools for conducting value chain analyses in the - often complex - value chains of multinationals.

Specifically, we believe that multinationals, due to BEPS and in general, need to re-assess their approach to transfer pricing and related documentation. Much of today's transfer pricing documentation materials are creating benefit for both in-house tax and transfer pricing specialists managing tax risks, as well as the subsequent compliance exercise for explaining the value chain to global tax authorities.

For some MNEs, this can seem as the perfect way for exposing material weaknesses in their transfer pricing approach. However, to us it is a way of ensuring that multinationals' own understanding of its value chain for transfer pricing purposes as well as subsequent discussion with tax authorities (based on documentation provided) can depart from an objective and detailed presentation of the value chain. We believe that going forward multinationals will benefit much from a transfer pricing approach based on transparency and substance. Our solutions for value chain analysis is meant as a step in that direction, ensuring that the transfer pricing exercise in the future – whether involving tax authorities or not - can be based on a clear and detailed fact patterns about the value chain.

Upcoming Research Project on Taxation and the Digital Economy

CORIT members Katja Dyppel Weber and Peter Koerver Schmidt are currently in the process of preparing a research project titled "The Digital Economy – Implications and Challenges in International Tax Law". The overall objective of this research project is to analyse some of the significant tax law challenges caused by the evolving digital economy and identify possible solutions. The research project will focus on the following four areas:

- Permanent Establishments and the digital economy,
- The application of anti-avoidance rules versus the use of tax legislation to attract investment in new digital technologies,
- The sharing economy and its inherent tax challenges, and
- Classification of income from new business models.

The research project will be anchored at the Law Department of Copenhagen Business School. Currently, external funding is being applied for.

Discussion paper Report on "Tax Avoidance Revisited"

CORIT members Jakob Bundgaard and Peter Koerver Schmidt has conducted a report on tax avoidance "Tax Avoidance Revisited – Exploring the Boundaries of Anti-Avoidance Rules in the EU BEPS Context". The report forms part of the discussions at next year's conference organized by the European Association of Tax Law Professors (EATLP), which will take place at the Max Planck Institute (Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Germany).

Other activities

Christian Plesner Rossing was speaker at the academic panel discussion: University of San Diego 3rd Transfer Pricing Symposium, San Diego, USA. April 24-25, 2015.

Further, Christian was speaker at Økonomiforum: 'Trends in Finance' conference, Copenhagen, Denmark. June 17, 2015.

Jakob Bundgaard was speaker at Folкетинgets Skatteudvalg 29 April 2015, in a public hearing on double tax treaties.

Apart from the daily advisory services of CORIT Advisory we arrange a host of tax events. We consider the events successful and will expand the activities during 2016. Examples of our activities include the annual well visited International group taxation seminars during the early months of the year. Moreover, we have hosted a number of tailormade tax training sessions for the tax departments of MNEs. We have initiated a number of discussion on tax matters (technical matters, Oil & Gas specifics etc.), where numerous in-house tax specialists attended. We continue to do so and welcome any suggestions on new events. Knowledge sharing is deeply rooted in the CORIT idea.

Thank you all for a splendid 2015!
